

Progress Report for the Implementation of PHP for Dynamic Web Pages

I am currently progressing well through my language project on studying and implementing PHP for dynamic web pages. In terms of my project timeline, I have decided to complete the programming phase first, and as of now, the programming project is complete and uploaded to the github repository, with all intended features successfully implemented. I am now starting working through the write-up for the project which should have a draft complete by 12/4 in accordance with the draft deadline.